

11- A very light touch

England's last remaining Covid restriction - the legal requirement to isolate after a positive test - was lifted at the end of February.

It came a month after the government lifted the requirement to wear masks in places such as shops and on public transport and the advice to work from home where possible.

But the truth is England has had a pretty light-touch approach to regulations compared to many places since the summer.

The masks mandate and working from home advice was only reintroduced in late 2021 as the Omicron variant took off.

What are the UK's Living with Covid plans? The approach is based on the fact that vaccines are providing great protection and England has seen very good uptake among those groups most at risk - 95% of over-60s have had a booster jab. It has meant that despite the surge in infections caused by the Omicron variant, the number of people dying has been similar to what would normally be seen during a normal winter. There are signs infections may be starting to climb again, but it is causing little concern at the moment.

22-EU agrees fourth package of restrictive measures against Russia

The European Commission welcomes agreement by the Council to adopt a fourth package of restrictive measures against Russia in response to its brutal aggression against Ukraine and its people. These sanctions will further contribute to increase economic pressure on the Kremlin and damage its ability to finance its invasion of Ukraine. They have been coordinated with international partners, particularly the United States.

Among the agreed measures are the following:

1. A full prohibition of any transactions with Russian State-owned enterprises across different sectors , especially military-industrial complex.
2. An EU export ban on luxury goods (as luxury cars, jewellery, etc.) to directly hit Russian elites.
3. Moreover, the list of sanctioned persons and entities has been further extended to include more oligarchs and business elites linked to the Kremlin, as well as companies active in military and defence areas, which are logistically and materially supporting the invasion.
4. A ban on the rating of Russia and Russian companies by EU credit rating agencies which would result in them losing even further access to the EU's financial markets.

9- NATO

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) also called the North Atlantic Alliance, is an international organisation among 28 European countries and 2 North American countries, established in the aftermath of World War II.

Its purpose is to guarantee the freedom and security of its members through political and military means. NATO constitutes a system of collective security, whereby its independent member states agree to mutual defence in response to an attack by any external party. It was established during the Cold War in response to the threat posed by the Soviet Union. The alliance has remained in place since the end of the Cold War, and has been involved in military operations in the Balkans, the Middle East and North Africa. NATO is committed to the peaceful resolution of disputes and has the military power to undertake crisis-management operations if needed. Ukraine is not a member of NATO which explains that military action is not taken. However, from the very beginning of the Russia-Ukraine conflict in 2014, NATO has adopted a firm position in full support of Ukraine's sovereignty and territorial integrity within its internationally recognised borders.

10- The United Nations Organization

The United Nations Organization (also known in Italian as ONU) is an intergovernmental organization whose purpose is to maintain international peace and security, develop friendly relations among nations, achieve international cooperation, protecting human rights, delivering humanitarian aid, promoting sustainable development, and upholding international law and be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations.[2] It is the world's largest and most familiar international organization. Its headquarter is in New York City. At its founding, the UN had 51 member states; with the addition of South Sudan in 2011, membership is now 193, representing almost all of the world's sovereign states. The UN, its officers, and its agencies have won many Nobel Peace Prizes.

The organization's mission to preserve world peace was complicated in its early decades by the Cold War between the United States and Soviet Union and their respective allies. Its missions have consisted primarily of unarmed military observers and lightly armed troops with primarily monitoring, reporting and confidence-building roles.

8-Trusted sources of information

February 2022 marks European history with a new dark page. Tens of thousands Ukrainian, mainly children, women and elderly people are fleeing the war, seeking refuge in neighbouring countries. Young people around Europe are in shock as they follow the news and stories from young people in Ukraine on Tik Tok and other social media channels.

A lot of fake news is circulating on the conflict, it is important to be aware of it and to refer to official sources. When reading or sharing content, always double-check the validity of the information, refer to reliable and up-to-date sources and follow the EU countries' national authorities dedicated pages.

The EU has also put in place a platform to better address and respond to the Russian Federation's disinformation campaigns affecting the European Union, its Member States, and countries in the shared neighbourhood. You will find a lot of information about Ukraine there.

5-NextGenerationEU-Make it Healthy

The Coronavirus pandemic has affected us all in one way or another – physically, mentally, socially. Now, we want to build a safer and healthier EU so that we are better prepared for any future crisis.

With NextGenerationEU, we will:

1. work with all EU countries to protect against health threats
2. invest more in research and innovation to develop vaccines and treatments, not just for new diseases like Coronavirus, but also for cancer
3. modernise our health systems so that hospitals in every EU country have better access to new technology and to medical supplies
4. fund training for Europe's medical and healthcare professionals.

Together, we can make Europe healthier. However, it's not just about big actions. A good diet and regular exercise can go a long way towards improving our physical and mental wellbeing.

With NextGenerationEU, we're ready to make Europe healthy

20-The UK will do more to help Ukraine in its war with Russia.

The prime minister Boris Johnson said he had spoken to the Ukrainian president Zelensky by telephone. He said he vowed to stand with Ukraine at a time when its people were facing such horror with such courage. Johnson said he told Mr Zelensky: "We know that we must do more to help. I pledge to you that we will." And he said that he knew Ukraine was fighting not just for their lives and their homes but for the cause of democracy and freedom itself.

Mr Johnson was speaking at the Scottish Conservative conference in Aberdeen, where he told delegates that the UK had "led the way" in providing weapons to Ukraine and imposing sanctions on Russia. But he added: "I think that we all feel that we can, and we will, do more around the world. "We will do more with defensive weapons to help our Ukrainian friends against these pitiless bombardments.

"We will do more to tighten the vice around Putin's economy - and with every day that the slaughter and the inhuman behaviour of Putin's war machine continues, I think that the resolve of the world to do more is growing and I am more than ever convinced that Putin will fail".

19-Wrong assumptions

Russia has one of the largest and most powerful armed forces in the world, but that has not been apparent in its initial invasion of Ukraine. Many military analysts in the West have been surprised by its performance on the battlefield so far.

Its military advances appear to have largely stalled and some now question whether it can recover from the losses it has suffered. This week, a senior Nato military official told the BBC, "the Russians clearly have not achieved their goals and probably will not at the end of the day". So what has gone wrong? Russia's first mistake was to underestimate the strength of resistance and the capabilities of Ukraine's own smaller armed forces. Russia has an annual defence budget 25 times bigger than Ukraine's one.

At the same time, Russia, and many others, appear to have overestimated its own military strengths. President Putin had embarked on an ambitious modernisation programme for his military and he too may have believed his own hype.

2-War in Ukraine: Anti-war opinions can cost Russians their jobs

After Russia invaded Ukraine on 24 February, many thousands of Russians, particularly in Moscow and St Petersburg, expressed their opposition to the so-called "special military operation", signing petitions, posting on social media, or joining anti-war street protests. The state's response has been heavy-handed, detaining thousands of protesters and introducing a new law which made spreading "fake" information about the Russian military punishable by up to 15 years in jail.

A Russian geography teacher wrote an Instagram post saying: "I don't want to be a reflection of state propaganda, I have my own opinion! It's not the same as the opinion of the state."

He felt compelled to write the comment after a staff meeting at his secondary school in central Moscow, in which he and his colleagues were told how to talk to their pupils about the situation in Ukraine - not to deviate from the government position.

Two hours after posting, he received a call from the school's headteacher telling him to delete it immediately, or leave his job. He refused and he was informed that he had been fired for immoral behaviour at work."

14-Refugees

The war in Ukraine has caused a refugee and humanitarian crisis within Europe not seen since the 1990s Yugoslav Wars. Because of the continued military build-up in Russia along the Ukrainian border, many neighbouring governments and aid organisations had been preparing for a mass displacement event in the weeks before the invasion. In the first week of the invasion, the UN reported over a million refugees had fled Ukraine; this subsequently rose to over 3.3 million as of 19 March. Most refugees were women, children, the elderly, or people with disabilities. Most male Ukrainian citizens aged 18 to 60 were denied exit from Ukraine as part of mandatory conscription, except for its male citizens if they were responsible for the financial support of three or more children, single fathers, or were the parent/guardian of children with disabilities.

Many Ukrainian men, including teenagers, in any case opted to remain in Ukraine to join the resistance against the Russian invasion. There has been an inflow of over 66,200 Ukrainian men to Ukraine, who returned from abroad to fight.

24-Humanitarian catastrophe in Ukraine calls for humanitarian access

Civilian victims are mounting in Ukraine day by day. Even for those sheltering from attack, the damage to housing, water supply and electricity leave many at real risk. The hostilities are making the supply of food increasingly difficult. Critical hospital services face constant power outages and there is a risk of ambulances and health workers being caught in the crossfire. Aid agencies are finding it more and more difficult to bring supplies to the people in need, with this problem becoming more acute as the war spreads. The war must not be allowed to prevent help reaching those in need. Desperately needed humanitarian aid must be able to reach all parts of Ukraine. Civilians, irrespective of their nationality, must also be allowed to escape cities under siege. Ensuring humanitarian access, including through the establishment of humanitarian corridors, is therefore an urgent priority. Allowing safe and unrestricted access for humanitarian workers and supplies is a legal obligation under international humanitarian law. The EU will continue working with international organisations and partners to ensure access and make humanitarian corridors operational as soon as possible.

21-Covid-19: Is the U.S. ready for a great reopening?

Two years after the US went into its first lockdown, the country is getting nearer to a pre-pandemic existence. When California issued a statewide stay-at-home order on 19 March 2020, most people thought that life would return to normal relatively quickly. A full 24 months later, people are finally starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel, with restrictions being eased in the US and several other countries. At Georgetown University in Washington, N95 masks, sit in boxes unused, a sign of how Covid restrictions have changed in the city and across the US. Currently, the rules allow people to live their lives almost as before. Of course, the restrictions vary, depending upon where a person lives, but the general picture is one of freedom.

While the US leads the world in total Covid deaths per population, nationwide, new cases have dropped to 36,000 a day, down from a staggering 800,000. The number of individuals admitted to hospital is also down by 75%. As a result, the mood is relatively positive, with people returning to ordinary life.

1-Boris Johnson compares Ukraine war to Brexit vote

Boris Johnson has been criticised for comparing the struggle of Ukrainians fighting Russia's invasion to people in Britain voting for Brexit. He said: "I know that it's the instinct of the people of this country, like the people of Ukraine, to choose freedom, every time. I can give you a couple of famous recent examples. When the British people voted for Brexit in such large, large numbers, I don't believe it was because they were remotely hostile to foreigners.

It's because they wanted to be free to do things differently and for this country to be able to run itself."

Mr Johnson also cited as an example British people choosing to get vaccinated against Coronavirus because they "wanted to get on with their lives" and "were fed up with being told what to do by people like me".

The comments have caused anger among politicians both in the UK and Europe because voting in a referendum was not in any way comparable with risking your life in a war.

18-Why Biden won't send US troops to Ukraine

Beyond diplomacy, there is a new recognition of Washington's military limits, a realisation that force won't get America everything it wants, however strong its army. That's an unusual position for the world's biggest military.

Today Washington is holding back, resisting the emotional pleas of Zelensky to use that military clout. It's sending weapons, intelligence and cyber-support, but for the moment it won't do more. America knows it could impose, and most probably enforce, a no-fly zone. It has the jets and missiles and pilots to do so. But, as the White House says repeatedly, mobilising the might of the Pentagon won't necessarily end this war, it might make it worse. It knows that not intervening could lead to the deaths of countless more Ukrainian civilians and that President Putin may strike a Nato country anyway, but the more America leads, the greater the risk that Putin can sell this to his own people as a fight between Russia and the US.

Which is why you won't hear the White House talk about regime change, or democracy, or even freedom in Russia.

3-NextGenerationEU-Make It Green

Europe is on track to become the first climate-neutral continent by 2050; we will produce no more greenhouse gases than our ecosystems can naturally absorb. With NextGenerationEU, we will invest in environmentally-friendly technologies, introduce greener vehicles and public transport, and make our buildings and public spaces more energy efficient.

But we also need to protect our natural environment. We will:

1. improve water quality in our rivers and seas, reduce waste and plastic litter, plant billions of trees and bring back the bees
2. create green spaces in our cities and increase the use of renewable energy
3. make farming more environmentally-friendly so our food is healthier.

The EU will be a leader in climate action but everyone can do their part: by taking public transport or biking, by eating more vegetables and less meat, by buying second hand, recycling and reusing.

28- The PNRR

On 13 February 2021, when Mario Draghi became the new prime minister of Italy, he made it clear that the national recovery plan was his number one priority. The final version of the document, called the National Recovery and Resilience Plan (PNRR), was sent to the commission on 30 April 2021, respecting the deadline imposed by Brussels.

Italy is the biggest beneficiary, by absolute value, of the NextGenerationEU funds. The total amount of resources in the PNRR is €235.1 billion. The national plan is coherent with the structure foreseen by the NGEU agreement, using 38% of the funds for "green transition" projects, and 25% for "digitalization" projects. The PNRR foresees 6 missions:

1. Digitalization, Innovation, Competitiveness, and Culture
2. Green revolution and Ecological transition
3. Infrastructure for sustainable mobility
4. Education and Research
5. Inclusion and Cohesion
6. Health

In parallel with those missions the government will also implement different structural reforms, acting on the Commission's recommendations. The government will apply 2 horizontal reforms, to the public administration and to the judicial system, consisting of structural innovations of those sectors, to improve the efficiency, equity, and competitiveness of the country. It will also adopt enabling reforms, in order to simplify and rationalize national legislation, by removing administrative, legal, and procedural obstacles that negatively influence the quality of public services offered to its citizens and businesses.

23-EU stands with Ukraine

The European Union, its Member States and Europeans across the continent are mobilised in support of people fleeing the war in Ukraine. Europe will be there for them in the weeks and months to come. We are working on all fronts to support Ukraine with assistance, humanitarian aid and civil protection. We have activated the temporary protection mechanism to provide people fleeing Ukraine with a secure status and access to schools, medical care and work in the EU. And we stand ready to channel more assistance and support both to people who left Ukraine to seek protection in the EU and those who stayed in Ukraine. Europeans are demonstrating all across our continent and many of them have offered help and opened their homes to people fleeing Ukraine. Everyone wants to do their bit to support people who have been forced to flee Ukraine because of the invasion or who stayed in Ukraine and need help. You can help by donating to the numerous organisations that have mobilised in the EU Member States to support people from Ukraine seeking protection in the EU. These include the national branches of international agencies and a range of other charitable and humanitarian bodies.

26-Economic effect of the Covid-19 pandemic in Italy

Italy was the hardest hit country during the covid-19 pandemic. At the beginning of the crisis, the government decided to implement a nationwide lockdown, to safeguard the health of its citizens. Those conditions had a devastating effect on the already fragile Italian economy. Since the beginning of the crisis, the country has entered a deep economic recession. The lockdown and the closure of borders hit the services sector hardest, such as tourism, an important source of income for the national economy. This had an impact on related sectors, such as food services, the hotel industry, and other social economic activities. The pandemic also deeply affected the employment field, with a loss of almost 1 million jobs in mid-2020. To respond to the economic crisis, the government adopted a different set of measures, to give assistance and liquidity to family and enterprises hit by the crisis. The Italian public debt increased rapidly since the beginning of the epidemic, which is a common phenomenon across the EU, since there was an increased costs for healthcare and economic and social assistance. After different proposals and strong opposition from other member states, the Italian government welcomed the commission's proposal for the Next Generation EU's plan.

13-America is learning the art of humility

The country that began this century by invading not one but two countries, has become more modest in the face of the nightmare that is Ukraine. Forget shock and awe, this is the era of caution and apprehension. That's what having no good options will do for you.

Last Friday's two-hour phone call with China's President Xi, superpower to superpower, was a sign of how hard it will be for America to stop this war. The US's influence over China is limited and the call didn't achieve much. But it was part of an orchestrated diplomatic strategy that contrasts with much of the first year of Joe Biden's presidency.

After the fiasco of the Afghan withdrawal last summer, America lost credibility with its European allies. US intelligence looked unprepared, and the operation of leaving was incompetent. What's more, European diplomats complained, America didn't really consult with allies. America pulled out on its own precipitous timetable, leaving countries that still had forces and personnel in the country scrambling. When some Europeans said it would be smart to leave a residual Nato force, the White House ignored the pleas.

16-Anonymous: How hackers are trying to undermine Putin

The Anonymous hacktivist collective first emerged in 2003 and has no leadership; anyone can claim to be a part of the group and hack for any cause they want, but they generally attack organisations accused of misusing power. Their symbol is a Guy Fawkes mask, made famous by Alan Moore's graphic novel V for Vendetta in which an anarchist revolutionary topples a corrupt fascist government. The group has many social media accounts, with 15.5 million followers on its Twitter pages alone. The collective has been bombarding Russia with cyber-attacks since declaring "cyber war" on President Vladimir Putin in retaliation for the invasion of Ukraine.

The hack was captured in a short video clip which shows normal programming interrupted with images of bombs exploding in Ukraine and soldiers talking about the horrors of the conflict.

The hackers justified their actions saying innocent Ukrainians were being massacred. "We will intensify the attacks on the Kremlin, if nothing is done to restore peace in Ukraine," they added.

15-How much do you know about mental health?

The number of young people with mental disorders has grown significantly in recent years and the COVID-19 pandemic and the Ukraine's crisis have only worsened the situation. Have you already felt like you do not think, react, feel in the way you want? If you have difficulties coping with experiences in your life, if you feel something is not right or if you feel lost and anxious, maybe it's time to take care of your mental health.

Mental illnesses are disorders that affect mood, thinking, feelings and behaviours and your ability to relate to others. They can have consequences that extend into adulthood, affecting both physical and mental health and limiting opportunities for a fulfilling life.

The European Commission has long been dedicated to improving the mental health of people and supports and complements national policies. It also selects and finances best practices implementation related to mental health, in line with national and EU priorities. The main objective of the European Union in the field of mental health is to support real action, focusing on the needs and priorities of EU countries.

17-The U.S and the Ukrainian crisis

Whether it was the lesson of Afghanistan or the nature of this particularly difficult catastrophe, we don't know, but the White House handled this crisis very differently. From the start it has consulted with its allies, many of whom were sceptical. There are reports that US diplomats approached Europeans as equals not subordinates. The administration shared highly secret intelligence in a manner that was unprecedented. In the months that led up to the invasion senior White House officials made multiple trips to meet their European counterparts. President Biden made regular phone calls to European leaders.

This wasn't Iraq in 2002, it wasn't Trump's America First, it wasn't Afghanistan in 2021. This was genuine alliance building. On 7 February there was an indication that diplomacy was bearing fruit. The German Chancellor Olaf Sholz visited the White House. Securing that visit of the brand new German leader was an indication that the administration both anticipated what was coming, and knew what was needed: German co-operation.

25- The economic consequences of the conflict according to Johnson

Boris Johnson is now trying to fight against the economic effects of the conflict, His calculation is that giving up Russian oil and gas is the best way the West can hurt President Putin. Without a no fly zone, or its own boots on the ground, squeezing Moscow's wallet is the chosen lever for the UK and its allies. So the prime minister has already vowed to phase out Russian oil, important for diesel supply, by the end of the year. And the EU's promised to cut the amount of Russian gas it uses by two-thirds. Those are significant economic restrictions on Moscow already that could be made tighter still. Sources suggest Boris Johnson is privately trying to push other countries to go further to cut Russia out of their economies. But crucial to his arguments is evidence that there are reliable replacements for the resources they stand to lose. The price of that loss is already obvious. The EU depends hugely on Russian gas. There's no question that a sudden withdrawal of those resources would be a drastic shock to the economy that we would all feel. So the prime minister is trying to find ways to plug the gap. That means travelling thousands of miles to talk to the leaders of some of the worlds' biggest energy producers - the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia.

7- NextGenerationEu-Make it Equal

From north to south, east to west, we want to build a Europe that works for everyone. We want all Europeans to have equal opportunities, whoever they are and wherever they live. And we want to celebrate diversity in all its forms.

With NextGenerationEU, we are:

1. fighting against racism and xenophobia
2. promoting gender equality and women's empowerment
3. protecting the rights of every community and combating discrimination
4. strengthening EU law to cover all forms of hate speech and hate crime.

Equality also means economic and social opportunities for all. With NextGenerationEU, we are boosting employment opportunities for people with disabilities, as well as for those living in rural, remote or disadvantaged areas. We are helping more people get decent, adequate housing. And we are investing in inclusive education for children, whatever their background, situation or special needs.

Everyone can do their part by promoting equal opportunities and criticize discrimination and hate speech, in real life and online.

27-The Next Generation EU

The Next Generation EU fund is a European Union economic recovery package to support member states adversely impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. Agreed to by the European Council on 21 July 2020, the fund is worth €750 billion.

The propagation of the Covid-19 virus across Europe pushed the continent into a deep economic crisis, and national economies were struggling due to the widespread lockdowns. From mid-March 2020, all member states adopted similar measures to address the economic crisis, by providing substantial aid packages to businesses and enterprises. Gradually, EU institutions agreed to adopt further measures to tackle the economic crisis and help the member states. The Next Generation EU is a break from the austerity policy adopted after the financial crisis of 2007–2008. The EU launched the COVID-19 recovery plan with several objectives. The primary objective is to help its member states repair the immediate economic and social damages caused by the coronavirus pandemic, and, additionally, to prepare a better future for the next European generation. Secondly, it also aims to assist the green transition. The third objective is modernising the European economy.
